

UNSKILLED WORKER 'SITTING PRETTY'

Wages Stay High, Boweryites Shine Up Snow Shovels

By JOHN COLLINS

The unskilled laborer should find this a cozy winter. Jobs will probably be plentiful and wages are expected to be maintained at a high level. The demand for the worker with no particular training is strong and according to reports from the labor agencies will continue so until the spring.

A good index to the unskilled labor market is the Bowery. There, not only New York, but other sections of the country maintain a reservoir of labor which they draw upon when business is booming. From all reports the Boweryite is "sitting pretty" after a prosperous summer and is now in the mood to let the bosses bid for his services.

According to John Alfieri, employment manager of the Ferrara Agency, a stormy winter will bring a scarcity of unskilled labor. Unusual numbers of workers along the Bowery are making for the South with their summer wages, and those that remain will probably command about a dollar an hour as snow shovelers.

As Mr. Alfieri sees it, there will be no bread line here this winter and the only man out of a job will be Urbain Ledoux.

Real Hell, Says Rev. Dr. Straton

should be read by those who are themselves transgressors of Divine law, whether in ways like those involved in the Hall-Mills case, or other ways, I would that some word here written might arrest them and bring them to repentance and thus stop a wrong career that leads to such wrecking of individual happiness and such disruption of organized society as we have seen in connection with this Hall-Mills case and which, therefore, must be met by the wrath of a holy God hereafter with adequate punishment, unless there is repentance and the correcting of wrong living in the present world.

You blatant infidels, who sneer at the church and laugh at the preachers and scoff at all righteous things; you profane men, taking even the holy name of God into your place of vice and shame; you lewd men and women, slaves to lust and appetite, prostituting the sacred powers that God has given you for propagating the race, to base, selfish and unholly ends. You destroyers of unborn infants; you vain and Godless society women, with your cigarettes, your cocktails and your indecent dresses; you who decline the duties and privileges of motherhood that you may pursue your selfish "careers," and who nurse contemptible little dogs rather than babies; you religious pharisees, who profess with your lips on Sunday a creed to which your lives give the lie all the other days of the week.

You conscienceless theater men who prostitute art before the altars of commercialism, who capitalize the sacrifice of womanly modesty and degrade girlhood by making a display of those very feminine graces and charms that God Almighty has designed for pure and noble purposes.

You gamblers, high and low, who defy the laws of God and man and make your living not by honest and self-reliant efforts, but who live as parasites upon society, and between whom and a thief there is only the difference of the thickness of a card; you covetous men, you worshipers of Mammon instead of God;

You profiteers, who are starving

the people and murdering millions of babies, as you enrich yourselves by raising the price of bread and meat and milk and coal and clothing—all of you—without concern for your immortal good or regard for the welfare of your fellow men, still drifting in selfish and luxurious living; when the world is sick and full of woe, and eternity is just before you, I ask you, in the very words of Jesus Christ himself:

"How can ye escape the damnation of hell?"

It is a fair question, because our thinking today should not stop with the final earthly results of this one instance of wrong doing, in the Hall-Mills case!

Don't miss Dr. Straton's startling analysis of the Hall-Mills trial every day exclusively in The Evening GRAPHIC.

Mrs. Ida Klopfer of San Bruno Road, Cal., writes: "Your salve did wonders. My little daughter was since birth afflicted with eruptions of the skin.
